

Perfecting hybrid working:

Power and mobility

Moving to hybrid working? It's time to re-evaluate your IT estate. Do you have more devices than you need? Can users switch seamlessly between home and office environments? Could your devices be greener, faster, more efficient? We're here to help you modernise your estate and ensure your users have the power and mobility they need.

Modernise and mobilise

If you haven't refreshed your hardware recently, we recommend taking a look at the latest generation of Apple devices. Powered by the innovative M1 chip, they boast faster boot and load times, vastly improved graphics performance, greater storage capacities and better battery life – ideal for staff who need a portable device that can work hard all day.

The increase in power also gives you the chance to downsize desktop machines to notebooks and notebooks to tablets for huge hardware savings and easier hotdesking.

Creative teams? Taken care of

The days of desktop machines trapping creatives in the office are over. The latest generation of Apple devices have enough power to run creative apps from Avid and Adobe – even on iPad.

Visibility over devices – no matter where they are

With our Jamf Pro device management service, IT teams can maintain at-a-glance visibility over their estate, no matter where workers are located. They can also use Jamf's Apple device management toolkit to selectively block and deploy updates, onboard new starters remotely, track inventory and enforce permissions, so staff can go mobile without compromising their security.

Centralising your estate

If you'd rather centralise your hardware in your server room, we can provide zero clients and PC over IP solutions that will ensure everyone accesses your system seamlessly and securely, meaning more efficient remote work and easier collaboration – with no additional IT burden.
