Your April edition

Can you believe it? This is the third issue of The Cache – the third! They grow up so fast... Anyway, you know the drill by now, so let's get on with the latest in IT, Apple tech and media and broadcast, shall we?

Media and broadcast

Revolutionise search and translation

We recently teamed up with Adobe and the Fonn Group to share some live demos of Mimir and DiNA, two revolutionary AI-driven innovations designed for cloud-native editing workflows. It was great to see so many people there, so thanks if you tuned in. But if you missed the stream, fear not – you can catch up on demand over on our YouTube channel.

Using Jamf Protect to best effect

Design house Jacob Bailey had a problem: they were Mac based, and their Windows-centric virus protection software suddenly wouldn't support them following the release of macOS Big Sur. We helped them roll out Jamf Protect, the leading designed-for-Apple solution, so they could keep their clients' work and intellectual property safe and secure.

Want to boost creativity and productivity?

Familiar with Photoshop, Illustrator and InDesign? Of course you are. But did you know that signing up to Adobe Creative Cloud gives you access to a much wider suite of brilliant Adobe apps, too? In this article, we take a look at some of the ways these Adobe tools can simplify day to day work and speed up those time-consuming manual tasks...

About us

Focusing on sustainability

Whatever the events of the last year, the climate crisis is still a crisis. As our CEO Roger Whittle recently told CRN, we're passionate about the role the IT sector can play in achieving greater sustainability. Take a look at what we're doing to improve our environmental impact (and watch Roger's interview while you're there).

Thinking about employee choice?

With the meteoric rise of remote working – a trend we predicted long before COVID-19 – we've seen businesses work hard to deliver an excellent user experience for all staff, regardless of location. One way we've helped customers is by enabling employee choice schemes, with our Apple Professional Services in high demand.
